Registrar's Note:

All students should pick up their Spring Term Study Cards and Complete Schedule and Directory at the Registrar's Office now. Study Cards are to be completed, signed by one's advisor, and filed at the Registrar's Office on Friday, Monday, and Tuesday-February 11, 14, 15.

Seniors graduating in May or August must also have their Study Cards approved by the Dean of Studies. The Study Card should list the student's January course and all Spring Classes. Any changes in class schedule from the original computer printout received at registration must be made by Drop-Add form issued by the Dean of Studies; if a student simply lists new classes on his Study Card without effecting the change by the proper form, the change will not be honored.

No student should delay filing his Study Card past the deadline (Feb. 15) because of a balance with the Business Office; even without full payment, the Business Office may be able to approve one's Study Card filing in most instances.

Political and Cultural awareness of the Chicano students. What was presented was original Chicano Art.

The students worked continually until curtain time. The costumes worn by the chicanas in the Balet were hand made by the girls themselves.

According to a Mecha Spokeman, the performance last Wednesday was a presentation to the college community of the beginings of a Balet Folklorico Estudiantil and a Teatro Experimental. The Chicanos are, through these means of expression, putting forth an effort to increase the awareness of the Anglo community to the Chicano's plight for social justice and racial equality in this land.

Elections Soon

Elections for Dorm Senators and Day Student Senators to the Ex-Council will be held on Thursday and Friday, February 10th and 11th.

Day Students interested in filing for these positions should contact Tom Gemma in the Student Body offices no later than Tuesday February 8th, or give their name to Mike Kelley in Augustine 416.

Resident Students interested in running for Dorm Senator should leave their names with the resident assistant on their floor no later than Wednesday February 9th.

Faculty Members Sponsor Meeting Concerning Dean's Dismissal

Last Wednesday, there was what amounted to a town meeting held in Dryden Reception concerning the dismissal of Odell Johnson. The meeting was sponsored by a committee of four faculty members, Mr. Townsend, Mr. Whelan, Mr. Lanigan and Mr. Leitner. The opening address defined the meeting as informational and factual, that it was to be an open forum. Anyone who wished to speak signed the sheet presented, and in the end about 16 people spoke. They were each limited to five minutes and there were no questions from the audience.

The statement by the committee of four revealed that there appeared to be different concepts of dorm life, as expressed by Mr. Johnson and by the Administration under Br. Mel, that the emphasis in the Administration was on formalized lines of communication, and that Odell Johnson's views and goals appeared to run counter to that of the college's administration.

Among the speakers were Sharon Bettenelli, who said that there had been good relations between the staff and Odell, and also with the Brothers in the dorms, which were the two main contentions of Br. Mel's note to Mr. Johnson. She also said that none of the staff or any of the R.A.'s had been consulted in the action to remove Mr. Johnson.

Allan Pollock said that Mr. Johnson was characterized by patience, calm, fairness and by the trust he had with most students. He said that Mr. Johnson's efforts in organizing the Student Handbook on student procedure and discipline had done much to create an evolution of peaceful self discipline among the student community while great change had been taking place.

Peter J. Mohorko, Dean Of Admissions, said that since he was hired in 1964 there has been a significant reduction of worries about dorm life, and more good feeling on the part of parents and high school officials on the subject. Chester Aaron, who has been living on the fourth floor of Augustine for the month of January said that he encountered no friction and that his limited experience with Mr. Johnson had always been pleasant and fruitfull.

Mr. Versluis said that he had known Mr. Johnson for two and a half years and that he felt he had great personal integrity. He said that Mr. Johnson had also done much to improve faculty-student relations. But most of all, Mr. Versluis said Odell had been influential in countering the great polarization building on this campus.

Mike Kelly, the new student body president, said that the fight to retain Mr. Johnson would not stop here, and that a faculty student committee was being formed for that purpose. He also said that it was obvious that the meeting was not stacked, so that this was an indication of the overwhelming support of the campus for Mr. Johnson. Joe Blell, former student body president, said that

The next concert of the St. Mary's Concert Series will be presented on Saturday, February 5 at 8:00 p.m. in Dryden Reception Hall. Performing works of Shostakovich, Faure, and Dvorak will be the Warsaw Quintet, composed of Tgor Twanow, violin; Jan Jawcoszewicz, violin; Stefan Kamasa, viola; Adrezej Orkisz, cello; and Wladyslaw Szpilman at the piano.

All the members of the Quintet are, on their own, distinguished soloists, and as a group have toured extensively throughout Europe, as well as Canada, Japan, Mexico, and the United States.

ISOSCELES

by Lee Lipps

An unmistakably conservative trend seems to have been developing at Saint Mary's in recent years, not so much among the students as among the faculty and the administration - particularly the administration. The College, circa 1968-69, seemed to be headed in a positive, progressive direction. During that school year, the students and the faculty were closely allied and there was unprecedented cohesion among the students themselves.

The turning point in the College's enlightened attitude, however, may be dated from the beginning of the school year, 1969-70, when Bro. Mel Anderson was installed as the new President of the College, although he had nothing more to recommend him other than that he was a graduate of St. Mary's, principal of St. Mary's College High School, and most importantly, a Christian Brother. This attitude then, as now, can be best summed up in one of his most recent remarks concerning his moral and legal responsibilities to the students of St. Mary's College which are, according to him, none. And he is, technically, correct. His only moral responsibilities are to the order of Christian Brothers and his only legal responsibilities, in his capacity of President, are to the Regents and the Board of Trustees of Saint Mary's College. However, it would seem, on the surface, that Bro. Mel does have some serious responsibilities to the students of this college in view of the fact we are the material cause of his existence as President, hence no need for Boards of Trustees, Regents or school administrations. On the other hand, one must accept Bro. Mel's basic assumption that there will always be students at St. Mary's College so long as the College does not completely collapse financially and is therefore forced to close its doors. And this is precisely the situation with which Bro. Mel was faced when he ascended the throne in 1969.

One of the main ways in which the college obtains funds necessary for the operation of the college is through contributions to the alumni fund. During the school year 1962-63 there were 1,248 alumni contributors and during 1963-64 there were 1,061 contributors. However, as of March, 1969, there were only 182 contributors to this fund - far short of the set goal of 1,000 contributors. Furthermore, there were a number of letters from alumni expressing dissatisfaction with the "liberalization" trend setting in at Saint Mary's and the obvious correlation may have been made between the two. One may be reasonably certain that this situation did not escape the attention of the powers that be. The selection of Bro. Mel as president appears to have been no accident in view of some of his subsequent actions.

One of the first indications of his intentions was the emphasis he gave to the athletic programs at Saint Mary's at a time when the huge athletic budget was dimly viewed by the majority of the students. He felt, presumably, that the prominence attained by athletic success would entice more numerable and larger donations, not only to the Gaelsports Fund but even-

— Dear Editor —

Notwithstanding the professed intention of the four faculty members who sponsored the affair, last week's "informal meeting of concerned faculty to gather information from all points of view about the decision not to renew the contract of the Dean of Students, Odell Johnson," soon took on the aspect of a Kangaroo Court. In the best tradition of such goings-on, the defendants (however volitionally) were not represented.

This author does not challenge the remarks made purely in defence of Mr. Johnson. He may well be "a guiding father" to some students; the one person of whom it may be said, "If there's anyone on campus who can be called a Christian man, it's Odell Johnson." Other remarks, notably those of Sharon Bettinelli, cast some doubt upon what is known of the reasons for the Dean's dismissal. Still others, accusations of a behind-the-scenes power play, etc., were simply left unfounded.

But there was another side to the meeting that proved less palatable. After the testimonials and what few facts that were both relevant and available had been stated and restated, the character of the speakers and speeches took on a decidedly different visage.

Previous speakers had, by consensus, convicted the administration of acting unjustly; these now attempted to promulgate a conviction of the concept of administration as unjust.

There were calls for "parity" between students and faculty and the administration, presumably with regard to such decisions as would be necessary to effect dismissal of employees of the college.

Again and again Brothers Mel and William Beatty were attacked not merely for deciding presumably wrongly, but for having the authority to decide at all.

tually to the College in general. Other highlights of his stay at Saint Mary's have been his adamance in favoring athletic competition with Brigham Young University, his openly dim view of the 4-1-4 academic calendar, and the firing of Academic Dean Dr. Alan Pollock - all in the face of contrary student opinion. However, Bro. Mel possibly feels that now he has fulfilled his moral and legal obligations to his superiors, first by re-Christianizing the college and, secondly, by the rising numbers of contributors and dollars to the various College Funds. The first year of his tenure, as of March, 1970, some 365 alumni had contributed over $69,342, up sharply from the previous year. Furthermore, attendance at St. Mary's is at an all time high. Bro. Mel might therefore feel that his policies have given the college new life and, therefore, there is obviously no need to change them.

It would seem then, perhaps, that the recent firing of the Dean of Students, Odell Johnson, is a direct manifestation of this conservative trend. Brother Mel possibly feels that he must continue this trend lest a stagnation set in that will put him in an unfavorable light with his superiors, i.e., those to whom he has moral and legal responsibilities, and the ouster of Odell Johnson might seem the most obvious and logical step by virtue of the fact that he is as progressive and popular a person on the Saint Mary's campus...

On the surface, it would appear that Mr. Johnson had no more to recommend him for such an important post than did Bro. Mel. His main claim to fame, in the beginning, was that he, too, was a graduate of Saint Mary's and, further, he was an outstanding basketball player - not an unimportant fact when one recalls the role that the alumni plays in St. Mary's life, and how they get misty-eyed over a few beers when recalling the bygone days of Slip Madigan or Herman Wedemeyer.

However, one must also recall that Mr. Johnson was hired for his progressive ideas and idealistic views and that he has lived up to his promises and has become, whether he wanted to or not, perhaps the greatest friend that a student at Saint Mary's has, primarily because he is accessible and receptive to all.

Unfortunately for Bro. Mel, the students and faculty of the College have allied together, like no time since 1968-69, against his decision to fire Mr. Johnson, and hence, the President will not have as easy a time disposing of Dean Johnson as he had in disposing of Dean Pollock. However, lest it be thought that the students and faculty have complete control and free direction in this matter, be assured that they don't. For if the administration really wants to dismiss Dean Johnson, regardless of the cost, then they can. However, it now rests on the shoulders of Bro. Mel and his supporting faction to decide whether the ouster of Mr. Johnson is worth the cost to the college, not only in the loss of one good man, but also in terms of student and faculty hostility.

In short, the alleged injustice of Johnson's dismissal is being used as a vehicle for forcing changes in the administrative structures - the goal being not merely the rectification of a supposed injustice by his reinstatement, but the usurpation of the authority that made his dismissal possible in the first place.

A list of dark imprecations were forwarded as the rationale for such actions. Ill-favored words like polarization and dissension thickened the air. There were overt hints at the possibility of violence. Through it all those who urged action against administrative authority were careful to tack disclaimers of violent activities to their pronouncements, but were equally careful to indicate that the only method for avoiding calamity was for the administration to acquiesce to their ill-defined demands.

Saint Mary's College is a private institution. Students come to this college aware both of that fact and, by virtue of the Guide to Student Life and College Bulletin, of what rights the administration claims by virtue of the necessity that administrative decisions be made with regard to the goals of the institution as defined by its nature, not in obedience to the mercurial will of an ever-changing student body and faculty. Faculty members receive the same considerations.

No further defense of the administration's right to make binding decisions is required by rational students.

Faculty Meeting

those who moved for Mr. Johnson's dismissal were not interested in any kind of meaningful communication, and that Odell had always been an essential part of the settlement of many disputes and crises.

Also among those who spoke were several seniors, and various representatives from Mecha and the B.S.U. who denounced the dismissal as breaking their one strong link with Br. Mel and the rest of the campus community. Also a number of staff members and R.A.'s came forward to attest to the job done by Mr. Johnson and his great sympathy and understanding for the student population as Dean of Students.

In fact there were no unfavorable comments about Mr. Johnson. No one was present from the Administration who presented views on the subject.

Collegian Charged With Rabble-Rousing

We, the "Unconcerned Students", take umbrage at the statement: "The Brothers do not communicate with the students". This is a lie. The Brothers in the dormitories are continually at the service of their students. The Brothers do not communicate -- where is Brother Albert day after day and night after night?????

Don't close your eyes and your ears to the truth. Open your eyes and close your mouths. The college will go on under the Christain Brothers when you rabble rousers are long gone.

The unconcerned boys and gals.

The retort courteous:

It is at least manifest that you are not concerned with your own reputations, and this in two regards: firstly, as a consequence of the above comment, you are apt to be accused of missing your mark, or some such

English Artists Perform

The world famed Allegri String Quartet from England, together with guest pianist Carlo Busotti performed Saturday, January 22, at 8:30 p.m. in Dryden Hall on the Saint Mary's College campus in Moraga.

The appearance of the Allegri Quartet was the third in the Saint Mary's 1971-72 chamber concert series.

The Allegri Quartet made its debut in London in 1954. During the past 17 years it has become one of the best known and most praised quartets in the world. Each of the artists is of soloist caliber and each has, in fact, appeared as a soloist with internationally known orchestras.

Members of the quartet are: Hugh Maguire, violinist; David Roth, violinist; Patrick Ireland, violist; and Bruno Schrecker, cellist.

Pianist Busotti played with the Allegri Quartet in England for several years and is now a member of the San Francisco State College faculty. He was an accompanist for Joseph Szigetti for many years and has played dual concerts with Nadish.

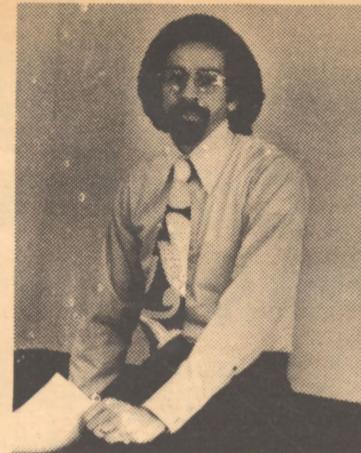

The Allegri played a program which included Quartet in E Flat Major, Opus 76 number 6 by Haydn; Quartet No. 4 by Bartok (1928); and Piano Quintet in F Minor, Opus 34 by Brahms.

charge which the ever-present company of the waggish are like to assign to any number of that artless brood of locusts known in polite terms as critics, for no member of the Collegian staff has ever publicly represented in this newspaper the statement which you have quoted above-twist your erudite way down some other alley and be consoled that I deem such overweening flatulence not worthy of my contempt; likewise the allegation that the newspaper is staffed by rabble rousers serves to indicate your opinion of yourselves, appropriately nameless, since it is you who have been stirred to take up the pen in order to make a spectacle of your private puerility (nonetheless, I am too sensible of the principle of objectivity to flatter your complacency so far as to maintain that you are acute enough to take note of your own fatuousness).

If you wish to try your hand at reproach again, recall the Collegian contains several members of its company who are versed at that method of rebuttal which was first practiced by that remarkable liquifier of human institutions, the renowned Quinibus Flestrin. These marksmen are capable of such contumelious showers as may drown out as good a deal of bombast and fustian as you may endeavor to produce without exhausting the reservoir of their powers: this claim says nothing of what nothing is usually said of.

In order to avoid an excessive use of the Flestrinian mode of countercheck, which has been abused and mishandled by those of naturally congested understandings, I would suggest that the members of this campus community who wish to ignite the flames of insensibility, and here I address not only these vulturous detractors who have attempted to engage me in a fashion perpendicular to my fancy in the above epistle, might employ a flickering of wit in doing so; since there is no evidence for the attribute of cleverness amongst the majority of the local incendiaries, it is hoped that upon its demand they may be rendered inactive, since they cannot be reformed, and that some object which can better sustain splenetic commentary may take their place. If this admonition is not clearly understood by some readers, it is not surprising in light of the subdued patience of yours,

Dean of Students Odell Johnson remains object of controversy.

China Policy Lecture

A lecture entitled "The New China Policy of the United States" was presented by Andrew L. DeGall, professor of economics at Saint Mary's College, on Wednesday, January 19, at 8 p.m. in Dryden Hall on the Moraga campus.

Professor DeGall discussed the situation created by Communist China's appearance on the world's political and economic scene. Included were important events behind the tightly closed Chinese curtain. Professor DeGall will also cover China's strategic power and potential as well as its long-range goals. Whether or not these aspirations can be reconciled with the interests of the United States was also discussed.

Professor DeGall is a native of Hungary and obtained his doctorate from the University of Budapest. During the 1930's he served as a staff member of the League of Nations and subsequently was in the Hungarian State Department until the end of World War II.

Following the war he was a consumer advisor for four years in Latin America. He located in the United States in 1962 to accept a teaching assignment and has been a member of Saint Mary's College faculty since 1965.

Gelinas Discussion

The Topic of a lecture by Dr. Elmer T. Gelinas at Saint Mary's College on Wednesday, January 26, at 3 p.m. in Dryden Hall was "Socrates and Meurault."

The lecture supplemented the freshman Collegiate Seminar readings in Plato and Camus insofar as an attempt was made to understand that most unusual character, The Stranger, partly by comparing him to Plato's hero, Socrates, as he appears in the Euthyphro, Apology, Crito, and

Kelly's Message to Board on Behalf of Johnson

The following letter was sent by ASMC President Mike Kelly in regard to the Dean of Students Odell Johnson.

Dear Member Board of Trustees,

There exists at this time on the St. Mary's campus a serious problem which is polarizing the entire college community. It regards the firing of the Dean of Students Mr. Odell Johnson.

It is unfortunate that in my first official contact with you, that I am forced to bring such a problem to your attention. Yet, I believe that this issue is serious enough for it to be brought to the immediate attention of every person connected with St. Mary's College.

Enclosed in this envelope are copies of petitions circulated by students over the past few days. They bear the signatures of over four hundred resident students who believe that an injustice has been done to Mr. Johnson. They are not just the signatures of Black students, Chicano students or so-called "liberal" students. Rather, they are the signatures of deeply troubled students of all races and political leanings. This is not just a minority problem. It is a problem which involved every student on this campus.

In the daily execution of his duties Odell Johnson works toward the goals and philosophy of St. Mary's College. As concerned students we recognize this and support him for it. For the past two weeks students, faculty and alumni have requested that the administration (Brother Mel Anderson) reconsider this decision. Meetings were arranged, petitions circulated and signed, favorable testimony was given by students and faculty alike as to the good job which Mr. Johnson has been doing. In response to these efforts we have received nothing.

Now we must turn to you in hopes that you will take it upon yourself to see that justice is done. Board of Trustees of this college have a responsibility to see that this matter is handled fairly and with as little delay as possible. Therefore, I ask you to contact Brother Mel Anderson and ask that a complete and detailed review of this issue be undertaken and that all the facts be heard. It is imperative that such action be taken if the campus is to be spared any further polarization.

Together we are counting on you to take a stand and see that justice is done.

Sincerely,
A.S.S.M.C. President Mike Kelly

Academic Council Suggests New Program

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) is a program whereby students entering college may be granted credit toward graduation on the basis of examinations designed by the College Entrance Examination Board. As a basis for evaluating the examination, CEEB uses a control group drawn from college students who have taken courses on the various examination subjects. In January, 1971, CEEB reported that more than 600 colleges were using the Program.

The most serious objection to the Program is that it uses multiple choice examinations as a measure of college work.

Phaedo.

Dr. Gelinas, a member of the philosophy department at Saint Mary's College, was born in British Columbia and took his Ph.D. degree from the University of Toronto in 1954. Prior to coming to Saint Mary's he served as chairman of the philosophy department at San Francisco College for Women.

Nevertheless, if they can be accepted as a crude and convenient measure, the Program does enable students to reduce their time and expense in college by up to one year, a year which those who pass the examinations can probably spend more usefully than in taking typical freshman level courses. The advantage to the College is a competitive one: if we do not adopt the Program, we will lose students to colleges which have it, and they will probably be bright students.

In light of these considerations, the Academic Council unanimously passed the following motion at its meeting of January 10.

That this College grant a maximum of 30 units (nine courses) of college credit to students passing the CLEP examinations at the median level or above, as compared to regular college students.

Materials on the CLEP Program, including sample questions from the examinations, are available for examination in the office of Dean Slakey.

Cagers, 1-4 in WCAC, Meet Portland Sat.

by Katie Wilkens

With 16 games thus far played in the Gael's 71-72 basketball season, and 10 more remaining, Coach Hale's cagers find themselves with a 1-4 WCAC record and an overall 6-10 season.

Last Saturday evening up at Rohnert Park on the Sonoma State College campus, the Gaels suffered their fourth loss in as many contests in a non-conference game against the Cossacks, 70-69 in overtime.

In a game that was supposed to be a Saint Mary's runaway, Coach Doug Earle's team jumped off to an early lead forcing Saint Mary's Coach Bruce Hale to take all five of his starters out and turn to the bench in the opening minutes of the game.

In the first half of play Saint Mary's found itself 9, 11, and 15 points behind at various times--but brought it to a respectable four point deficit at the half trailing by a score of 39-43.

Upon returning to the floor the Gaels got something going with Earl Brown grabbing a lot of shots and ending up with an evening total of 25 points. Going down to the closing seconds of the game Maurice Harper put one in to tie it 60-60 forcing the contest into a five minute overtime, with the Cossacks pulling it out 70-69.

The loss to the Cossacks was only a third of the aforementioned problems of the faltering Gaels. On Thursday the 13, the Gaels also lost to the Santa Clara Broncos 81-65 as 2,537 onlookers watched Earl Brown and Maurice Harper pump 19 and 17 points respectively for the Gaels but to no avail. The trick that really hurt the Gaels in this outing was their inability to stop Santa Clara's 6'5 forward, Bruce Winkler who paved the way for the surging Broncos with 21 points and numerous rebounds.

The Gaels did show pluck as they stayed in there and trailed Santa Clara only by 4 points as they went into the half as the score was 42-38.

The only other outstanding performance in the night was the appearance of Coach Hale's son, Alan as he helped his Bronco teammates to a victory.

From the floor Santa Clara shot 51.5 percent to the Gaels 41 percent. This plus The Broncos superior strength off the boards accounted for the St. Mary's loss.

This loss was soon to become an omen for the January 15 game at U.S.F.

as the Gaels also lost 92-75. This game was a happy one for Coach Bob Gaillard's Dons as it put the Gaels into a 1-3 category in the WCAC Conference. Now, after the Sonoma loss the Gaels are 1-4 in their conference and hope to improve their game this Saturday against the University of Portland in the St. Mary's gym. Game time is at 8:00 p.m.

Snow 'Lift' Slated February 25

The Moraga Valley has never been accused of being the snow capital of the world by anyone, so needless to say the sight of snow in this area is as rare as a weekend without beer cans. This lack of snow is a sad fact for the many frustrated skiers on campus; but now there comes a chance to remedy some of this gloom. As the title of this article suggests, there is a winter holiday forthcoming. This social fete of the winter season is sponsored by Greg O'Flynn, Bob Johnson and Charleen Fisher with the help and guidance of the Squaw Valley organization and is set to begin on the 25 of February and lasting the weekend.

The cost of such an event will be $19.50 if you drive and $32.00 if you take the bus. These prices include:

Food and lodging for the length of your stay (round trip transportation if going by bus).

Activity books with a ski lift reduction of $1.50 per day.

Wine and cheese parties along with a dance and a broomstick hockey game.

Fun races and regular slalom races.

Close by to Northshore Tahoe and Reno.

Sauna bathes and swimming facilities available.

This trip will leave at around 5:00 p.m. Friday the 25 and return late Sunday. This will afford everyone (skiers and non-skiers alike) a good chance at the snow.

It should further be mentioned that this carnival will be participated in by many of the surrounding colleges and all will stay at Squaw Valley. If you are interested (how could you not be?) please contact Greg O'Flynn 314 Aug., Bob Johnson Aqu. 103 or Charleen Fisher in Mitty 214. Money for this trip must be in by the 14 of February to one of these people.

SMC Gets Irvine Grant

The James Irvine Foundation of San Francisco has made a grant of $75,000 to Saint Mary's College of California to provide student financial aid over the next year-and-a-half it was announced this week by Brother Mel Anderson, FSC, president of the college. Funds from the grant will be used to assist students at Saint Mary's who are California residents and in need of financial aid.

Boele's Team Going Places While Varsity Stalls

by Will Gesselbrach

Storm clouds brought the rain and another loss for the St. Mary's varsity XV last Saturday this time at the hands of their alumnus nemeses, the Old Gaels. Intermittent showers during the game provided a slippery turf and created a juggling act out of ball handling. However once again tactical errors and subsequent penalties proved fatal for St. Mary's as Joe Kehoe, '69, converted two kicks for the Old Gaels, one in each period. Pat Madison was the lone scorer for St. Mary's when he carried the ball for a tri from a two yard scrum. The kick was not converted.

The day had its bright spots however as the Gael second XV trounced the Old Gael seconds 19-0. Tri's were scored by Dave Paul, Bob Fauria and Frank Sullivan. John Komara donated two conversions and a penalty kick for another seven points. John's fine kicking ability so far this season combined with some superb mobility and spirit on the part of the second fifteen has demonstrated some fine rugby this season. Team captain Mike Boele feels his team should be going all the way this season. He didn't mention where.

St. Mary's surprise third team brought home the bacon also on Saturday by beating the Santa Rosa RC by a score of 7-4. Mike Kerry scored a tri while Mike Phillips put a drop kick through the uprights in the last few seconds of the game.

Next Saturday the Gaels will have a very difficult match with the boys from Berkeley. Game time will be at 1:30 p.m. at Bear Stadium with the second's game immediately following. During the semester break the Gaels will travel to Los Angeles to play UCLA on February 1st at 2:30 p.m.
