GAEL FOOTBALL: THOSE THRILLING DAYS OF YESTERYEAR The First Thirty Years

It is virtually inconceivable that Saint Mary's College football teams, which now compete on such a low-key basis, ever won the Cotton Bowl, defeated U.S.C. before a capacity crowd in the Los Angeles Coliseum, or upset Fordham University's famed "Seven Blocks of Granite," the undefeated champions of the East. Saint Mary's, the "Notre Dame of the West," the school that upset the major grid powers of its time, "the most exciting team in the nation?"

The cynic would insist that such exploits must be the contents of some B-movie script. (As a matter of fact, John Wayne and Donna Reed starred in a film about a small Catholic college whose foremost rival was Santa Carla.) After all, how could an isolated liberal arts college of several hundred male students garner such athletic prominence? How could they afford it? Where would they play? Who would attend such contests?

Improbable as it may appear, such was the case. From the mid-twenties to the late forties the Saint Mary's Galloping Gaels vied for national rankings, competed in the Cotton, Sugar and Oil Bowls, and stunned the nation with its distinct brand of daring, rugged football. Rising costs, a 1-7 record, and a desire to enhance the academic atmosphere of the College resulted in the cancellation of intercollegiate football in 1951.

(The Collegian derived much of the material for this series from past Gael annuals and from anecdotes circulating among alumni and friends of Saint Mary's. The Collegian regrets any inaccuracy detailed in these columns, and encourages those more informed than the editors to rectify our errors. Any corrections will be disclosed in later editions.)

The origins of this dynasty were indeed humble. History relates that Saint Mary's students first took to the gridiron in 1892 as a favor to the students of Hopkins Academy, across the street from the College's Oakland Brickpile campus. The Hopkins eleven, a prep power, needed a second team to scrimmage between games, and the Saint Mary's students were most obliging. Later that year, Saint Mary's, outfitted in the borrowed uniforms of their Academy neighbors, played Oakland High School in the first football game in the College's history. Saint Mary's won, though the score has been lost in antiquity. In 1893, with their own uniforms, they defeated Sacred Heart of San Francisco 36-0.

The football program prospered. Santa Clara became an instant rival in 1896. The Little Big Game, as this series became known, was as renowned and exciting as any traditional rivalry anywhere. California's Golden Bears were added to the schedule in 1898.

Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, caused an abrupt termination of Saint Mary's football by ordering a nationwide ban of the game, sometimes around 1910.

Rugby returned to Saint Mary's as a substitute for football until 1915, when, the ban having been rescinded, Saint Mary's returned to the gridiron. The Cal game proved the highlight of the year. Saint Mary's, having been defeated already by Berkeley's jayvees and U.S.C., upset the mighty Bears' varsity on a 103 yard touchdown jaunt by Lou Guisto, for whom the baseball field is now named.

1917, the last pre-war year saw Saint Mary's accumulate an 8-1-1 mark, including a 7-0 triumph over S.C. and a 14-13 defeat of California.

World War I decimated the ranks of colleges everywhere, and the Saint Mary's athletic program collapsed. The Saints suffered three straight shutouts in 1920 and canceled the remainder of the season.

The following year, 1921, one Edward P. Madigan was hired to rebuild the floundering athletic fortunes of Saint Mary's...and rebuild he did.

Brother
Austin
Crowley
FSC

1898-1972

Brother Austin Crowley, FSC, who served the longest presidential term in the history of Saint Mary's College, died on Friday, September 8, at John Muir Hospital in Walnut Creek following a long illness. Brother Austin was 74.

A wake was held at 8:30 p.m. on Sunday, September 10, in the Saint Mary's College Chapel. The funeral was at noon on Monday, September 11, in Saint Mary's College Chapel.

Born in Dunmanway, Cork, Ireland, Brother Austin taught in a number of schools throughout the world and was the recipient of many honors for his contributions to the teaching of language. He started his teaching career in Talc, Chile in 1916. After serving as instructor of the Christian Brothers' novitiate in Martinez, he came to Saint Mary's College in 1926.

Brother Austin received his A.B. degree from Saint Mary's and subsequently was awarded M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in romance languages and literature by the University of California, Berkeley.

From 1941 until 1950 Brother Austin served as president of Saint Mary's College. This period included the World War II years when most of the Moraga campus was used as Saint Mary's Naval Pre-flight School. At the conclusion of the longest presidential term in the College's history, Brother Austin took a second Novitiate at Rome and then taught a year at Manhattan College in New York City.

He returned to Saint Mary's College in 1952 and was appointed the chairman of the modern language department, a post he held until illness forced his resignation in 1965.

In 1963 Brother Austin was presented the "Officier des Palmes Academiques" by the French Government for his work in the field of Romance Languages. This award, presented to educators and artists who have distinguished themselves in their respective fields, was created in 1808.

PLAGIARISM: DEFINITION AND PENALTIES

The penalties described apply to all work submitted for academic credit at the College. The purpose of the penalties is not primarily to punish offenders but to prevent plagiarism by making clear that nature of the offense and the seriousness with which the College views it.

Thomas J. Slakey
Academic Vice President

PLAGIARISM

1. Definition and Comment

A. To plagiarize is to pass off as one's own the words or thoughts of another; that is, to use them without giving due credit to the source. This definition does not, of course, include language and ideas of common currency.

B. It is evident that plagiarism of all sorts undermines the basic ends of liberal education. It subverts the acquisition of knowledge and intellectual discipline since what is stolen is not really learned; it subverts even more obviously the intellectual integrity which should be expected of a liberally educated man. Finally, it is unjust and demoralizing to students and faculty alike.

C. Plagiarism, as defined, includes the following practices: 1) Direct quotation of printed or written material without acknowledgement. 2) Paraphrase; adopting the ideas and, sometimes, the organization of printed or written material without acknowledgment. 3) The employment of another person to write papers required in courses. 4) The employment of another person to dictate in an organized fashion the ideas or language of papers required in courses. This practice is to be distinguished sharply from the free discussion and interchange of ideas among students and faculty, which is one of the most important benefits of academic life and which the College wishes to encourage in every possible way.

D. All forms of cheating in examinations, even if the student has, for example, himself compiled the material for his crib, will be subject to the same penalties as plagiarism.

E. A student who in any way aids another to plagiarize or cheat will be held equally culpable and subject to the penalties for plagiarism.

F. These strictures against plagiarism are not directed against the legitimate use of sources in the development and testing of the student's own ideas. The purpose of penalties for plagiarism is in fact not merely negative, as a guard against dishonesty, but positive, as a means of promoting sound scholarly method. It should be recognized that many of the ideas the student will deal with do have definite sources, which the student should refer to in order to insure accurate understanding and to acquire reasonable grounds for estimating their value. Ideas can seldom be judged well out of context. By the same token the reader of a paper should be enabled, by means of footnotes or other clear indication, to refer to the context from which ideas have come. Further, the student should learn that generalizations should always be supported by clear inference from facts immediately in view or commonly known or else by reference to sources whose validity the reader can investigate and judge for himself. Empty generalization and dogmatic personal assertion have little value.

2. Penalties

A. The penalty for a first act of plagiarism shall be total loss of credit for the assignment. The fact shall be transmitted to the Dean of Students, who will record the offense and so inform the student's parents or guardian as well as all teachers in whose classes the student is enrolled at the time.

B. The penalty for a second act of plagiarism at any time in the student's college career shall be failure in the course involved. Again, the Dean of Students will record the offense and notify parents and teachers.

C. The penalty for a third act of plagiarism shall be disqualification from further attendance at the College.

D. Ordinarily the course instructor shall judge whether an act of plagiarism has been committed. In cases of doubt he may refer the question to the Academic Council for review and final determination. The accused student, if he believes an error has been made by the instructor, may also request a review and final determination by the Academic Council.

Law-1 Rev.-0

Mentioning the Lord's name failed to save a Detroit minister from conviction in Windsor Provincial Court on a liquor charge.

"God is looking at you, young man," the Rev. DeWilliam Jackson, a Baptist minister, told a police officer who testified that he saw him in a car with a can of beer in his hand and unpackaged malt liquor and wine on the seat beside him.

"And the court is looking at you," interjected Judge Lloyd Henriksen, who found the minister guilty and fined him $15.

Police said that Jackson violated an Ontario law against possessing liquor "in a place other than a residence" except while taking it home from a store. It must be packaged during transit.

Jackson told the court that a hitchhiker had left the liquor behind and that he was taking it to a trash barrel when police saw him.

MUSIC

NEW DIRECTOR OF CHORUS SEEKS SINGERS, INSTRUMENTALISTS

John Peter Gaffney, former Director of the Schola Gregoriana of San Francisco and director of several Bay Area choirs, will assume directorship of the St. Mary's Chorus this fall. A graduate of St. Mary's, Mr. Gaffney has done a good deal of composing for various media and has been studying theory and composition for the past two years at the University of California, Berkeley.

Plans for music-making on campus this year embrace not only chorus work but the formation of a madrigal group and an instrumental ensemble as well.

Students and staff-members interested in any aspect of performing music should contact Mr. Gaffney at the first regular meeting of the chorus on Wednesday, September 13th, 3:30 p.m., at Dante 113, or thereafter by phoning 848-5495.

In an interview with the Collegian late this summer, Mr. Gaffney unfolded his ideas: "I know the St. Mary's campus community contains within itself exciting possibilities for making music at many levels, possibilities which can use the chorus as a point of departure. I'd like to aim for the performance of some major pieces of choral literature involving soloists and instrumentalists for the two big concerts towards the end of each semester. But beyond that, why can't we organize a series of musical evenings of a more intimate sort, something on the order of vocal chamber-music? That means finding instrumentalists and singers who would like to work together for the sheer joy of making music together. And out of a student body of 1100, there are surely some good instrumentalists to form an ensemble which could in time work into a chamber orchestra.

"Why not create 'musical banquets' involving other arts as well? Say, for example, an evening of Elizabethan madrigals and Tudor dance music, perhaps with some people from Stanford's Renaissance Dance Troupe, laced with readings from Wyatt and Surrey, Shakespeare and Marlowe? Or we could put together an evening of readings from the poets of Spain's Golden Age, set off by music from the Court of the Catholic Kings. Or an evening of ragtime like Scott Joplin, with readings from American poets of the Lost Generation while showing slides of some of the best American painting from the period. There is just such joy in the musical heritage of any culture, joy I want to explore with anyone who has the desire to make music together."

Mr. Gaffney will also be offering classes in sight-reading and musicianship to anyone interested, private classes for Beginners piano, and a course (for academic credit) in Counterpoint to students with the requisite musical background.

Gaels Ready for Opener

For the first time in recent years there will be a duel for the leadership spot at quarterback. There are three candidates, Jim Peterson, a senior who played behind Jerry Murphy last year. Randy Nelson, a sophomore who shows great poise but lacks experience, and Almon Holmes a sophomore who transferred from Solono Jr. College.

In the backfield we will have plenty of experience. Jim Datrice, co-captain and St. Mary's candidate for All-American will lead the runners. Last season Jim led St. Mary's in rushing and punt returns. He is a good open field runner and has strength to brake away from tacklers. Hugo Keyner, a returnee, has shown good moves will backup Datrice. The other halfback is Mike Fanucchi, he can burst through holes quickly and uses his speed to out fox his opponents. Steve Gannon an ex-marine. Tim Hanrahan and George Adams, a transfer from Humbolt State, will be trying for the fullback spot. George also doubles as a halfback.

Any team with a good running attack must also rely on a good passing game. This year St. Mary's should be blessed with both. At split end Frank Sullivan is returning along with a transfer from U.S.F., Tom Bidegary. Frank has good hands and is capable of gaining good yardage once he catches the ball. Bidegary is considered a highly talented player and should contribute to the team. We will also have Mike Lee at tight end with Jerry Kelleher pressuring Lee for the starting slot.

Behind any good running or passing team there are the unsung players--the seldom heard from guys whose job it is to protect the passer or open holes for the runners. John Dyer, is a returning offensive guard. John has plenty of experience and should be a big plus for the team. George Stasko is the other veteran guard and he is also the other co-captain. Ed Tywondiak should be there at center with Bob Rota and Rich English a transfer from Marin Jr. College backing him up. Brian Kelly, Mark Broughton and Kevin Hull are fighting for the offensive tackle spots.

Defensively, we have Marvin Perez returning at middle guard. Mike O'Brien and Tom O'Neal are the returning defensive ends. O'Neal has been bothered by an injured shoulder, but newcomer San Scott from Berkeley has performed well at this position.

Bob Klein, Don Hensic, Steve Romania, and Daniel Ruvalcaba are trying for the linebacker positions. Romania is a freshman and Ruvalcaba is a transfer from Chabot. Klein is an all purpose defensive player and has played well at each of the positions.

In the secondary Mike Phillips and Raul Ramos are coming back again. Stephen Drisdale, a freshman has shown good speed and should see plenty of action this year. Denny Finnegan and Earl Green will round out the db. corps.

This year the Gaels will have 16 transfers and 9 freshmen on the squad. In the first scrimmage of the season the offense moved the ball well. Mike Fanucchi had a good day at halfback. The defense will have to be tightened up, but in the long run with the experience and the desire of all the players, this year should be a good one for St. Mary's.

Peddle Power

Hey bikers, this year you are moving into the big time. "The Collegian" is going to run a weekly column just for you. "Peddle Power" will have the latest on meets and equipment and will offer a weekly bike trip.

The trips will be from 20 to 50 miles in length, and will provide scenery, exercise and fun for those interested enough to try.

This weeks ride, courtesy of Brother Gabriel Murphy, covers 30 miles, with a shortcut part way through for those whose eyes were bigger than their leg muscles. The ride should take 3 hours for the full circuit, 2 hours for the shorter course. It would probably be wise to leave after lunch, about 12:30 and check your tires before you leave. Good luck.
