'Godspell' Cast Members to Appear Here Sunday

Members of the cast of the musical "Godspell" will participate in the 6 p.m. mass on Sunday, November 12 at the S.M.C. chapel.

Selections from the musical based on the Gospel According to St. Matthew will be presented as an integral part of the celebration of the liturgy and will include "Prepare Ye the Way of the Lord," "Day by Day" and "All Good Gifts."

Several of the eight current companies of "Godspell" in this country have participated in church services as did the San Francisco company in July at Old St. Mary's in San Francisco. The joyous exhilaration of the show seems as popular with church congregations as with theater audiences, as exemplified by nightly standing ovations in the theater.

Chaplain, Fr. Ed Martin commented, "one of the Church's tasks is to announce God's presence in our lives. The going-to-church experience should help people celebrate our Father's embracing love. Those who have seen 'Godspell' have found new meaning in the Gospel readings."

"Drama helps people better understand and deal with life, so we've invited the 'Godspell' cast to help us in celebrating God's love."

Brother V. Matthew Benney was instrumental in arranging for the "Godspell" mass.

Members of the cast of "Godspell" will participate in the community mass at 6:15 Sunday in the Chapel.

Travel Center on Campus

One of the new services available on campus this year is the Ferroggiaro Center Travel Bureau. The new venture assists the College community in all travel planning.

Because of the large volume of travel done by the faculty, administration, and students of the College, a program was organized in cooperation with the Orinda Travel Service to coordinate travel and make ticketing more convenient to the community.

Travel information -- on land, sea, or by air -- is available by contacting Brother Martin Ash, Director of Ferroggiaro Center, (Extension 252). Brother has PSA tickets on hand for commuters to the Southland. Anyone can make reservations and obtain their ticket before going to the airport.

Charter flights to Europe will be handled as in the past by Dr. Max Berg (extension 325). These would include the January term flights and the summer vacation trips to Europe.

Anyone planning on flying to Los Angeles for the Thanksgiving holidays should contact Brother Martin soon for reservations.

Executive Symposium Topic Announced

The subject of Saint Mary's College's 16th Executives' Symposium to be conducted February 7 and 8, 1973, will be "Time for Business to Fight Back: Positive Programs for Strengthening Confidence in the Profit System." Announcement of the topic for the annual conclave of business executives on the Moraga campus was made this week by Carson Magill, chairman of the steering committee.

Magill reported further that the keynoter, as well as panel members, would be named in the near future. As in the past, he pointed out, the Symposium speakers will be comprised of nationally known authorities drawn from the top echelons of both business and government.

Saint Mary's College Executives' Symposia have come to be known over the years for their free exchange of ideas and provide insight into the problems confronting the business community. Such subjects as inflation, business climate, unemployment, responsibility, and business image have been dealt with.

Subject of last year's Symposium was "Consumerism -- An Exciting Trend or an Exaggerated Problem?" and featured Mrs. Virginia Knauer, the President's special assistant for consumerism affairs.

Invitations to attend the two-day conclave on the Moraga campus will be extended to key executives throughout Northern California.

The chairman of Saint Mary's College's Executives' Symposium is Carson Magill, executive vice president, Western Regional Manager of McCann-Erickson, Inc. Other committee members are: Carl E. Atkinson, director-public relations, Western Region, U.S. Steel Corporation; Charles L. Gould, publisher, San Francisco Examiner; Arthur Latno, Jr., vice president - regulatory matters, Pacific Telephone Company; Angelo J. Siracusa, executive vice president, San Francisco Bay Area Council; Ross B. Yerby, vice chairman of the board, Del Monte Corporation; and Brother T. Jerome West, FSC, vice president, Saint Mary's College of California.

Aleksei Nasedkin, one of the top members of the new generation of Russian musicians, will be the second presentation of the 1972-73 Saint Mary's College Chamber Concert Series. The internationally famed Nasedkin will appear in Dryden Hall on Saturday, November 11, at 8:30 p.m.

Pre-Dental Students

For the ninth consecutive year the American Dental Association is sponsoring the program in Dental Research for College Students under a grant from the National Institute of Dental Research. This program makes it possible for selected pre-baccalaureate college students to spend 10 weeks in the laboratory of a senior dental scientist who is working in the field of the student's career interest. The overall objective of the program is to identify exceptional students and to furnish insight, through a direct experience, to the challenges that exist in oral biology and related research. Since the scope of oral science includes the entire spectrum of basic and clinical disciplines, this program should be of interest to those students planning to work toward advanced degrees in the biological, physical and behavioral sciences as well as students oriented toward medicine and dentistry. Successful candidates will be placed in the laboratories of senior dental scientists wherein the student participates in research studies related to the expressed primary field of interest to each student. The program provides a stipend of $1,000 to the student for his maintenance during a period of 10 weeks in the summer. Air travel will be provided to the student's assigned institution, to a meeting site of a conference held in late August, and back to the student's home or school. The total value of the ten week period is between $1,200 to $1,400 depending upon distance traveled. The conference is composed of all student trainees and an opportunity is given for the presentation of individual research reports.

The deadline for application for the Program in Dental Research for College Students is February 15, 1973. Information and application kits are available from Dr. Phillip Leitner.

Policy

Policy Statement
"The Collegian" is the foremost medium of communication on this campus. If it, The Collegian, is to be of value to the college community, and more specifically to the Associated Students it must have two attributes; it must be credible, and it must be informative.

A reputation for objectivity and accuracy is what we seek. We will not ignore controversy nor will we create undue controversy. Those issues felt to be of interest to the community will be presented in an objective and accurate manner.

Editorial Board

At the present time the editor finds himself with sole authority for all aspects of The Collegian. Since potentially this could result in The Collegian representing an opinion of one, and one judge of fact, fiction, accuracy, and value the editor has taken it upon himself to form a five member editorial board to determine the editorial policies and positions of The Collegian. This was done since it is thought that the college community would be better served by having diversity in the board. The board will serve as the center for discussion, the members will have the privilege of publishing editorials not approved by the board by running the editorial with their own signature.

The five members of the board will be Carlos Reyes, Bonnie Guilbault, Randy Andrada, Mike Gash, and John Love.

January Term Pre-registration Closes Friday

All fulltime undergraduate students, except those in the Integral Program, must enroll in a course during the 1973 January Term. Pre-registration for all January Term courses is now under way, with the deadline for filing pre-reg forms set at 3:30, Friday, Nov. 10th. Late pre-registration incurs a $10 fee - not because the administrators involved are particularly avaricious, but because we wish to induce compliance with necessary deadlines.

State Scholarships

The California State Scholarship and Loan Commission reminds high school seniors and college students that the postmark deadline date for the filing of California State Scholarship applications is November 20, 1972.

Eleven thousand two hundred new scholarships for undergraduate college students are to be awarded by the Commission in April 1973. Students who believe they are in need of financial assistance for tuition and fees at the colleges of their choice

Dear Parents and Students:

In the past, midterm and final grade reports were ordinarily mailed to the student's parents or guardian at the student's permanent address. However, in view of recent legislation lowering the "legal age" to 18 years, and upon the advice of the College's attorney, we are obliged to discontinue our past procedure of student grade release. In the future, grade reports will be released only directly to the students themselves.

Very truly yours,

Bikers

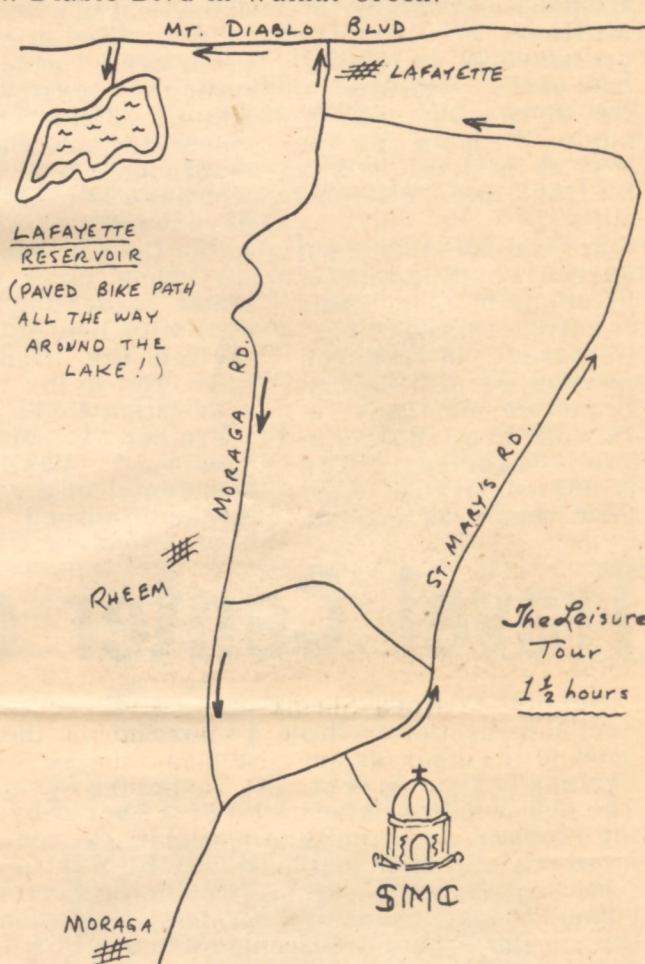

There are a number of erroneous conceptions regarding cycling which demand clarification.

The information shared with you is not entirely exclusive. Experience, training, and personal friendships have contributed to our knowledge on cycling. The suggestions presented are not, no doubt, the only ways to approach a particular problem, but have proven the most beneficial for us and our customers.

This discussion concerns itself with "spin."

"Spin" is nothing more than pedaling. The use of a "good spin" is dependent on a cyclist's leg size and the bicycle. The degree of difficulty in pedaling is similar to ascending stairs. Taking 2-3 steps at a time compacts "work" into a small number of "heavy" steps, while taking them one at a time spreads the work over a larger area. Therefore, on a bicycle, the lower the gear, the smaller the step, the faster the spin. Thus coordinating the speed of spin with "work" for each revolution results in a "good spin."

The significance of a cycle tailored to a cyclist is accordingly obvious. Our job is to assure that correct tailoring. Should you have any questions on "Cycling", see us at: Diablo Bike & Repair, 2040 Mt. Diablo Blvd in Walnut Creek.

SMC Counseling Center

The college's Counseling Center is presently located in Room 301 of De La Salle Hall. Anyone wishing to make an appointment with Brother Ed. may usually find him taking lunch in Oliver Hall between twelve and one p.m. on school days, or contact him by phoning Extension 224, or just "drop by" his room any time.)

Q: It seems to me that college students have a fairly strong desire to assert their independence. Does this cause some of them to shy away from a counselor?

A: I think this occurs more than we realize. The counselor is a helper, but not the kind of helper that many parents and teachers have been to the student. For many students their only idea of "help" is that of being given advice, being told how to be good or happy or popular or successful, when, really, the best thing one can do for a person at this age is to let him be himself and take responsibility for who he is and what he does. He's already got enough facts. This is the only way real independence is achieved, and that's what we're trying to do here.

Q: Are there other misconceptions which might cause a student to hesitate to visit a counselor?

Not a 'Shrink'

A: Several. For example, I sometimes asked whether I am the "campus shrink". I do my utmost to assure everyone that, whatever else I may be, I most certainly am not a psychiatrist for this requires that one first be a medical Doctor, nor am I a clinical psychologist. I am a professional counselor. There are problems that a psychiatrist and a clinical psychologist are qualified to handle which a trained counselor is not. A conscientious counselor must recognize his limitations. I believe most students can be greatly enriched by the one-to-one relationship which constitutes the counseling experience. College students usually first develop this kind of relationship from among their peer group and I believe this can be a good thing. I am simply suggesting that, in addition to these relationships on the peer group level, it can be a very worthwhile experience for college students to cultivate a few one-to-one relationships with persons who, because of their wider experience and, hopefully, their own maturity, better understand what the growth process is about, what makes it tick, and can really help it along. It offers another dimension which might as well be tapped for whatever riches may be discovered there. And, let me make clear, this kind of relationship of which I speak need not be with me personally. It may very well be with a favorite teacher or two with whom one has a fine rapport, or it may be with one of the priests on campus, or with a college administrator, or with one's residence hall counselor. Now to label anyone of these potential counselors as a "campus shrink" is simply to create an image-impasse which only scares others away and deprives them of the many advantages which a counseling relationship offers.

Another destructive misconception is the notion that the only time one should seek out a counselor is when one has a problem - much like the only time one goes to a dentist is when one has a toothache. Now while it is true that counselors are often helpful in solving problems, this is by no means their chief function. A far more important job for them is to create a climate, an atmosphere of warmth and acceptance where-in the other person feels comfortable enough to really think out loud and to really feel out loud without the least fear of being graded, or judged, or evaluated - much less ridiculed or rejected in any way whatever. A good counselor is essentially a good listener with some skill in tossing out an occasional question with the sole purpose of helping the counselee see the total picture so that he may discover his own insights or, possibly, perceive a conflict or an incompatibility in his own goals. This is the way he formulates his own answers and makes his own decisions. Normally a counselor does not dispense advice. His role rather is to make it easier for the counselee to advise him or herself. You'd be surprised at how often this happens. I might mention here, too, that the counseling relationship is almost always a two-way street, a kind of exchange of treasures, in which the counselor oftentimes receives far more than he gives. Like Shakespeare said about mercy, counseling blesses him who gives as well as him who receives. Therefore anyone who consults with a counselor only when problems become too much to cope with alone, impoverishes both himself and the counselor.

Q: It sounds like you just described the core of the counseling process as you understand it.

A: Yes, I do believe that personal relationships contribute a great deal to the entire educational process. In their classrooms, students are bombarded with so much material. Again, when reading books, they are deluged with more information. And then again when interacting with their peer group in various meeting places on campus they encounter such a diversity of viewpoints, of attitudes and of values. Eventually each one is forced to try and put it all together for himself and to tailor it to one's own unique self. A measure of solitude is helpful toward this goal. Another great aid is that of meaningful dialogues, first, with those from one's own peer group, one's close friends, and another is the relationships one has cultivated with older men and women with whom one feels on friendly terms.

Students Choose Own Direction

Q: It sounds like you really do let a person choose his or her own direction without imposing anything on that. But isn't this rather risky? Shouldn't you be more militant in safeguarding young people from making mistakes?

A: Once students of today's world reach college age, they are, as you indicated earlier, going to be independent and they should be encouraged to be so. I believe in the fundamental goodness of human nature. I believe that people do seek to become their best selves ultimately even though they may sometimes take detours or find themselves on a dead-end street. None the less the dynamism of growth and self-fulfilment continues on and deserves to be trusted. I know it is not easy for any of us to watch another make mistakes. Yet, despite our best efforts, we find there are times when we can do nothing but allow people to make their own mistakes. And this is not always and necessarily a catastrophe. I don't know of any human experience - short of suicide - that cannot become a learning experience. Learning is especially likely to happen if and where there exists the one-to-one relationships which constitute the very heart of the counseling experience.

No Advice

Q: From what you have said, I gather that you are against giving advice to the students who come to talk with you.

A: This is true. I have high regard for the uniqueness of each person I meet. I also recognize that each one of us is still in the process of becoming. We are not already made. I know, too, that I am not God. In light of these kinds of truths I do not think it is my role as a counselor to impose my life-style, or my values or my beliefs on anyone who isn't asking about my personal philosophy of life. Neither is it my intention to remake anyone according to my own image and likeness, to make carbon copies of Brother Edward, or to develop zombies. Much less is it right for me to try and play God in anyone's life. I am present to another primarily as an interested listener as that "other" struggles to formulate his or her own attitudes and values and beliefs.

Q: Why does it seem to you that advice simply is not very effective?

A: Because people are fed up with advice. College students, in particular, are weary of being told what they should do and what they should not do. I believe that until an attitude or a principle or a belief is personally internalized it is destined to wither and die. Whatever is externally imposed on someone of college age from outside their own chosen attitudes, values and beliefs is not likely to endure for very long or survive under challenging circumstances. Take as an example the freshman who, in most cases, is for the first time really free from home. All through his homelife he's been warned about how bad it is to get drunk. But he's not convinced. He hasn't digested the idea, he's just swallowed it. So there comes a day when he's got his first opportunity to go out and get roaring drunk. And let's say he does this five or six times. Pretty soon, the lethargy, the headache, the expense, the idea that he's been making a fool out of himself - all these come together as part of his experience. Now he's ready to either digest this idea about getting drunk being bad or, quite frankly, just puke it out. If he's got half a wit, he'll usually decide that such kind of drinking just isn't good. He's saying the same thing he was told at home, but what matters now is that he's internalized it in himself, digested it, made it meaningful, real, relevant, or whatever other word you want to use.

Q: In addition to the one-to-one relationships such as you hope the Counseling Center will foster and promote, are there any other services which you envision the Counseling Center offering in due time?

A: Yes. Among these I should like to mention the following for now:

1. Supplying material helpful for choosing a career.
2. Administering Vocational Interest Tests.
3. Providing information on Graduate Schools.
4. Facilitating contacts of students with alumni who share similar occupational or professional interests.
5. Creating some kind of in-service training for students interested in becoming more effective counselors.

Gaels Take Pair in Southland

The St. Mary's Galloping Gael's continued their galloping ways yesterday with a 28 to 22 victory over arch rival Loyola. The Gael's started out as if it were going to be a carbon-copy of the second half of the Azusa game. Taking the opening kick-off they marched straight down the field mixing up their plays beautifully. A 38 yard pass from Jim Peters to Tom Bidegary with 12 minutes remaining in the first quarter gave the Gael's the lead, and with the extra point conversion by Randy Nelson, it was 7 to 0 St. Mary's. Only 23 seconds later the Gael's scored another touchdown. It was set up by an interception by Almann Holmes who returned the ball to Loyola's 23 yard line. On the first play, Jim Peters threw his second touchdown pass to Tom Bidegary, and with the extra point by Randy Nelson it was 14 to 0 St. Mary's.

The Gael's were not through yet. After another interception, this one by Mike Phillips, the Gael's marched steadily down the field. With nine minutes to go in the first quarter All-American candidate, Jim Datrice scored his first touchdown of the day, and with the extra point conversion by Randy Nelson it was 21 to 0 St. Mary's.

Led by their quarterback Dale Chrioni Loyola came back to score with 2 minutes remaining in the first quarter.

The extra point was missed, so the score was 21 to 7 in favor of St. Mary's. With 8 minutes to go in the second quarter a 10 yard pass from Christioni to Steve Rhodes made the score 21 to 12, and with the extra point conversion it was 21 to 13 in favor of St. Mary's. With four minutes to go in the first half, Jim Datrice scored again for the Gael's, and with the extra point by Nelson it was 28 to 13 St. Mary's. With 38 seconds to go in the half Loyola scored again on a 14 yard run by Christioni, and that made the score 28 to 20 in favor of St. Mary's at the end of the first half.

Where the first half had been an offensive half, the second half was like a whole new game. The defense in this half dominated for both clubs. In fact the only scoring was early in the third quarter when Jim Datrice was tackled in the end zone to give Loyola a safety. That finished the scoring for the day. In the third quarter especially, Loyola had many chances to score as they were constantly deep in St. Mary's territory. However some key interceptions by Paul Ramos and Mike Philips in the end zone saved the Gael's. During the last six minutes of the game, the Gael's showed brilliant ball control. Taking the ball deep in their own territory, they were able to ground out yardage on the ground, and thus they were able to run out the clock to preserve the Gael's 28 to 22 victory.

Statistically the game was fairly even. St. Mary's picked up 20 first-downs to Loyola's 18. The Gael's gained 367 yards in total offense, 209 on the ground and 158 yards through the air. Loyola gained a total of 333 yards, 215 yards passing and 118 yards on the ground. Christioni completed 20 out of 49 passes, and he had 7 passes intercepted four by Mike Philips. Jim Datrice for the fourth game in a row gained over a 100 yards rushing. He gained a total of 115 yards. Jim Peters completed 6 passes out of 14 attempts for a total of 141 yards.

The key area in St. Mary's win was the outstanding play of the defensive secondary. Led by Mike Phillips four interceptions along with interceptions by Paul Ramos and Almann Holmes the Gael's intercepted seven passes, and covered their assignments very well. Several times in the second half key interceptions and batter down passes kept Loyola from scoring the winning touchdown.

The Gael's record is now at three wins and three losses. This Saturday the Gael's play Colorado College, a team that they have not played before. The following Saturday they play against Oregon Tech, a team to whom they lost to last year.

Herschel Benuti Lives!

Yes friends, Herschel Benuti, the Peerless Prognosticator, the Sagacious Seer, The Fearless Forecaster, the Darndest Divinator, the Delphi Delver, you get the idea, once again graces the sports page of the Saint Mary's Collegian.

You people who remember the B.C. (before co-education) years will recall that ole Hersche's pronouncements with amusement. For those unfamiliar with such by-gone luminaries as Hersch or even the Garroulous Gael this indeed an opportune moment to acquaint oneself Moraga's most sacred institution---Herschel Benuti. And now this weeks predictions.

Another bad week for Berserkly as UC drops another

Watsamatta U. (Minn) 17 Bloomsburg (w. Va.) 14 should be a real yawner, a match of the mismatched.

USF 6 Santa Barbara 7 The Golden Dons of Vince Tringalli, who made them what they are today, are still looking for their first win. This week they fall to the dead and gone Gauchos of UCSB.

Notre Dame, known to many as "the Saint
